March is Women’s History Month

The public celebration of women’s history in this country began in 1978 as “Women’s History Week” in Sonoma County, California. The week including March 8, International Women’s Day, was selected. In 1981, Sen. Orrin Hatch and Rep. Barbara Mikulski co-sponsored a joint Congressional resolution proclaiming a national Women’s History Week. In 1987, Congress expanded the celebration to a month, and March was declared Women’s History Month.

Two significant factors contributed to the emergence of women’s history. The women’s movement of the sixties caused women to question their invisibility in traditional American history texts. The movement also raised the aspirations as well as the opportunities of women, and produced a growing number of female historians.

American Women’s History Online

Available to cardholders through the library website, American Women’s History Online is one of the authoritative products included in Facts on File. This resource features biographies, subjects, primary sources, maps, charts, images and timelines that pertain to over 500 years of women’s history in America. Videos have recently been added to enhance the collection. Users can keyword search or browse by topic and by time period. All content may be printed, copied or saved for personal use. Full citations supply source information for both teachers and students.

There are many more history databases available to library cardholders in Facts on File:
- American History
- African-American History
- American Indian History
- Modern World History
- Ancient and Medieval History

And also:
- Ferguson’s Career Guidance Center
- World Geography and Culture
- Bloom’s Literature
- Health Reference Center
- Curriculum Resource Center
- The World Almanac for Kids
- Science Online
